Standard fee for Particulars of Claim

Trials

Daily rate

Brief fees are calculated according to the formula $D*(d+p)$ where D is the daily rate and d the number of days for which the trial is listed or the number of days the trial lasts if longer, and p reflects the anticipated number of days' preparation. Subject to specific agreement on a case by case basis p is to be assumed to be the same as d .

d includes any day of reserved judgment and hearings as to costs, whether or not Counsel attends on those hearings.

If the trial is expected to last longer than 10 days then individual agreement is required.

Interlocutory work

≤ ½ day

For interlocutory work longer than 1/2 day in length, fees are to be calculated as above for trials.
